Founded by the Society of Jesus in 1851, Saint Joseph’s University advances the professional and personal ambitions of men and women by providing a demanding, yet supportive, educational experience. One of only 142 schools with a Phi Beta Kappa chapter and AACSB business school accreditation, Saint Joseph’s is home to 3,950 full-time undergraduates and 3,300 graduate, part-time and doctoral students. Steeped in the 450-year Jesuit tradition of scholarship and service, the university strives to be recognized as the preeminent comprehensive Catholic university in the Northeast.

SPIRIT

It’s hard to pinpoint when it happens for some people. When they abandon their dreams and it suddenly becomes okay simply to settle for what’s good enough. When their effort starts to fall behind their potential.

This must not happen in college. And it does not happen at Saint Joseph’s.

INTELLECT

While college means many things to many people, this much is common: College is the time when you make things happen. It is the place where you open yourself to what’s possible and raise the bar to another level.

And, when the time comes to prove yourself, you’ll have the courage, the support and the knowledge to exceed even your highest expectations.
A Demanding Education for Demanding Times

Students come to Saint Joseph's University seeking a values-based learning experience. They join a community that regards questions of ethics, morality and faith as centrally important to human existence, and they are encouraged to examine, reinforce and question their most deeply held beliefs.

At the same time, Saint Joseph's students are moved and guided to develop to the fullest every facet of their intellectual potential, bringing into harmony theory and practice, tradition and innovation. Cultivating a compelling determination to maximize one's innate abilities has taken on greater urgency in today's enormously complex and competitive world. Thus, the university sets ever-higher educational standards for its students.

The caliber of Saint Joseph's academic programs, students and faculty attests to its growing national reputation.

A Jesuit University, Saint Joseph’s educates men and women who use their education to make the world better. A student in Saint Joseph’s first class in 1851 became a justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Today there are 40,000 living Saint Joseph’s alumni in law, medicine, business, finance, communications and education - strengthening their professions and their communities in every part of the world.
College of Arts & Sciences

Students enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences pursue a major course of study in one of the college’s three divisions: humanities, social science, and natural science and mathematics (see right for a complete list of majors). Students who wish to explore intellectual questions and themes embodied in the intersection of two disciplines may create an interdisciplinary major.

The College of Arts and Sciences is also home to many special academic programs designed to enrich the undergraduate experience and underscore a commitment to experiential learning. These offerings include service-learning programs, study abroad, internships and R.O.T.C. Through these opportunities, Saint Joseph’s students gain valuable experience that is in keeping with the Jesuit tradition of making a difference in the world through the spread and pursuit of knowledge—in the classroom and beyond.

Ervan K. Haub School of Business

Students in the Erivan K. Haub School of Business approach their professional curriculum with the valuable skills of a strong liberal arts foundation. This component of their education ensures that students can enter the business world as analytical and critical thinkers, well practiced in oral and written self-expression.

Every course is influenced by the Haub School’s location in state-of-the-art Mandeville Hall, a building that sets a national standard for classroom technology. Students and faculty plug laptops into network ports in any seat, and classes are taught from computer-driven podiums networked directly to student computers.

Experiential learning is as fundamental to the Haub School of Business as in the College of Arts and Sciences. This includes service projects such as developing a financial plan for a Philadelphia area not-for-profit and internships selected in conjunction with faculty and Career Development Center advisors. Students may also participate in the Cooperative Education Program, associated with every major in the school.

An Expansive Metropolitan Experience

Saint Joseph’s University is closely allied with the entire Philadelphia region. Due to its unique City Line location, students enjoy both a tranquil campus and ready access to the city’s diverse population, vibrant cultural life, major-league entertainment and sports, rich history and abundant professional opportunities. In fact, Philadelphia - the nation’s fifth largest city and hub of the Northeast corridor - serves as a kind of alternate campus.

Students take advantage of the city in many ways. Thanks to an extensive and supportive alumni network, they obtain internships with leading companies and other regional employers, take part in cooperative learning programs and find rewarding positions in the corporate, government and service sectors.
Center City

Philadelphia's central district is home to thousands of businesses, with concentrations of financial, insurance, real estate, engineering and legal services, and access to city, state and federal agencies, services and courts. Market Street West has become known as Philadelphia's Avenue of Technology. With more than 43,000 living alumni working in these and other fields, the opportunities to make professional connections are limitless.

SJU students take frequent advantage of the artistic and cultural resources Philadelphia offers, as well. They visit the Philadelphia Museum of Art, the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, the Franklin Institute Science Museum, the Academy of Music, which houses ballet and opera, and the new Kimmel Center, home to the Philadelphia Orchestra. In addition, SJU students know they always have a good time rooting for Philadelphia or other hometown teams in the four major professional sports.

Timothy R. Lannon, S.J., an accomplished leader in Jesuit education, is in his second year as the university’s chief executive. Fr. Lannon succeeded Nicholas S. Rashford, S.J., at the start of the 2003-04 academic year.

Under Fr. Lannon’s stewardship, Saint Joseph’s capitalized on unprecedented exposure last year. Admissions applications and selectivity increased, with enrollment numbers reflecting a vast geographic expansion. In August the university returned to the top 10 in U.S. News & World Report’s annual rankings, and the new City Avenue Residence Halls opened, providing supervised housing for 400 students as well as additional parking.

Lannon came to Saint Joseph’s from Marquette University, a fellow Jesuit institution in Milwaukee, Wisc., at which he was vice president for university advancement and associate executive vice president. He previously served presidential internships at the College of the Holy Cross (1996) and Boston College (1997-99), also Jesuit institutions, while completing a doctorate and teaching fellowship in the Graduate School of Education at Harvard University.

The 53-year-old Fr. Lannon is a native of Mason City, Iowa. He is a 1973 graduate of Creighton University, a Jesuit school in Omaha, Neb., where he earned a B.S. in mathematics and was elected president of the student body. He entered the Society of Jesus (Wisconsin Province) in 1977, completing philosophy studies at Saint Louis University and later two advanced degrees at the Weston Jesuit School of Theology in Cambridge, Mass.

Fr. Lannon spent 1980-83 at Marquette University High School in Milwaukee, teaching mathematics and theology and also working as academic assistant principal. He was ordained a Roman Catholic priest in 1986 and, in 1988, was named president of Creighton Preparatory School in Omaha. He served seven years in that post before returning his focus to higher education.

At Marquette, Fr. Lannon was asked to lead the University Advancement area after two years in central administration. Development income achieved record-breaking years in both 2000-01 and 2001-02, with Fr. Lannon also serving as vice chair of the University Planning Council and as a member of the University Marketing Council.
Great strides have been made over the past decade to enhance the overall aspect of student life at Saint Joseph’s University and at the heart of this growth and development is Vice President for Student Life, Dr. Linda Lelii.

In her 11th year in this capacity, Dr. Lelii is responsible for Residence Life, Career Development, Counseling and Personal Development, Student Leadership and Activities, Student Health, Student Educational Support Services, Advising to Students with Disabilities, Multicultural Life, New Student Orientation, Student Discipline and Athletics and Recreation.

Dr. Lelii came to Hawk Hill in 1987, as Assistant Vice President for Academic Affairs. In this role she was responsible for Academic Support Services (including Records and Registration, Academic Computing, Admissions, Financial Aid, Academic Services, Service Learning and Outcomes Assessment). In 1991, she was promoted to Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Dr. Lelii received her Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania in Counseling Psychology and her master’s degree in psychology at Southern Methodist University. Prior to coming to Saint Joseph’s, she served in a variety of roles in higher education: as an Assistant Professor in Counseling and Student Personnel Services, as an adjunct lecturer in Women’s Studies, as an Assistant to the Provost, as a Counseling Psychologist in college counseling centers and as a psychological services associate in a state mental hospital. Her publications and presentations have ranged from interpersonal perception to alcohol abuse and character formation.
One of the most active and respected leaders in collegiate athletics, Don DiJulia is in his fifth decade of affiliation with Saint Joseph’s University.

The 62-year old DiJulia is in his second stint as the University’s top athletic administrator after returning to SJU as an Associate Vice President/Athletic Director in June of 1988. He has spent 22 of the last 29 years on Hawk Hill.

Over the past 15 years, DiJulia has overseen tremendous growth in the University’s athletics programs. During his tenure, five varsity programs have been added, a new weight training facility built, athletic facilities upgraded and athletic fund drives initiated. In addition, the importance of the student-athlete has been recognized with the institution of the Athletic Director’s Honor Roll as well as the senior Scholar-Athlete awards. DiJulia also spearheaded SJU’s hosting of various conference and national tournaments, including the 2000 NCAA Women’s Basketball Final Four held at the First Union Center in Philadelphia.

DiJulia was at the center of the most compelling story in college basketball in 2003-04 as Saint Joseph’s gained the attention of a nation with its successful quest for the perfect regular season and run to the NCAA Elite Eight. With DiJulia leading the way, Saint Joseph’s handled the unprecedented demands on the program from its many constituents, including alumni, fans, and media.

Working with University President Timothy R. Lannon, S.J., and Vice President for Student Life and Academic Development Dr. Linda Lelii, DiJulia arranged contract extensions for men’s basketball coach Phil Martelli and women’s basketball coach Cindy Griffin. With agreements that were reached in the summer of 2004, Martelli’s tenure at Saint Joseph’s was extended through the 2011-2012 season with Griffin’s stretching to 2008-09.

A 1968 graduate of Saint Joseph’s, DiJulia has worn many hats in college athletics during his more than 30 years of professional experience. His career began in coaching, with a one-year stint as assistant baseball coach at SJU in 1968. He then went on to assistant coaching positions in basketball at Fairfield University, George Washington University and American University.

During his first stint as Director of Athletics at Saint Joseph’s from 1976 to 1981, DiJulia was instrumental in the planning and construction of the $5 million athletic and recreation complex. He also oversaw the growth of women’s athletics as softball and cross country were added as varsity sports.

DiJulia left Saint Joseph’s in 1981 to become Commissioner of the East Coast Conference, a position he held for two years until leaving to become the Commissioner of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference from 1984 to 1988.

He remains extremely involved in the intercollegiate athletic community, and currently serves on the Atlantic 10 Television Committee, the Philadelphia Sports Congress Executive Committee, and the Philadelphia Olympic Bid Feasibility Committee.

A two-sport athlete as an undergraduate in baseball and basketball, DiJulia was a member of the 1964-65 Hawk basketball team which compiled a 26-1 regular season record and a top 10 national ranking under head coach Dr. Jack Ramsay.

He and his wife, Pat, reside in Havertown, PA, and have seven children and six grandchildren.

From Junior Varsity to Varsity

Over the years, six players have made the move from the Hawks’ junior varsity to varsity teams. These players have earned spots on the varsity teams as walk-ons, and along with other non-scholarship players, have been integral parts of the tradition of Saint Joseph’s basketball.

Mike Farrelly

A former member of both Saint Joseph’s junior varsity and varsity teams, Mike Farrelly returns for his second season as coach of the junior varsity squad. As a freshman at SJU, Farrelly played on the junior varsity team before earning a spot on the varsity squad as a walk-on. During his career on the varsity from 2000 to 2003, he was a part of two Hawk NCAA Tournament teams.

Originally from New City, NY, Farrelly earned his bachelor’s degree in finance from Saint Joseph’s in May 2003. He currently lives in Wynnewood, PA, and works for American Express Financial Advisors in West Conshohocken, PA.

Why Hawk Hill?

In the early 1920’s, when former university president Albert G. Brown, S.J., decided to move the college campus from its location just north of the city at 17th and Stiles to its current site on Philadelphia’s city line, he selected the location in part because its hilltop perch overlooking downtown Philadelphia provided a dramatic setting for the construction of the college’s main building, Barbelin Hall. In fact, for many years Barbelin’s signature carillon tower ranked as the highest point from sea level in the city of Philadelphia. Later, according to oral tradition, students and faculty frequently saw real hawks circling the skies above Barbelin, before swooping down on their prey. The familiar scene eventually led to the coinage of the moniker “Hawk Hill.”

Crimson and Gray

The college colors of crimson and gray date back to the 1890’s when it is related that a young seminarian leading a pep rally saw the colors on a book he was holding. Thinking they looked attractive together, he announced that these would be the school colors.

“The Hawk Will Never Die!”

The Hawk is one of the most famous mascots in the country, best known for staying in constant motion by flapping its “wings” from tip-off to the final buzzer of every game, as well as for “flying” in figure eights around the court during timeouts.

The constant flapping, coupled with the scrappy play of the University’s athletic teams, helped to spawn the school’s familiar slogan “The Hawk Will Never Die!”

Fight Songs

“Oh When the Hawks Go Flying In!”
(Sung to the tune of “When the Saints Go Marching In”)
Oh, when the Hawks, go flying in, Oh, when the Hawks go flying in,
I want to be in that number,
When the Hawks go flying in.
(Repeat above)
Let’s Go St. Joe!
Let’s Go St. Joe!
Let’s Go St. Joe!

“Mine Eyes”
(Sung to the tune of the “Battle Hymn of the Republic”)
Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Hawk,
He is flying through the doorway ’cause he never, ever walks,
He is flying through the rafters like a loyal, loyal Hawk,
The Hawk will never die.

Glory, glory what a helluva way to fly,
Glory, glory what a helluva way to fly,
Glory, glory what a helluva way to fly,
The Hawk will never die!

We have been to Cincinnati and we’ve been to Buffalo,
We have been to Carolina flying high and flying low,

And when we get to Maryland let everybody know,
The Hawk will never die.

Glory, glory what a helluva way to fly,
Glory, glory what a helluva way to fly,
Glory, glory what a helluva way to fly,
The Hawk will never die!
For close to 15 years, the Saint Joseph’s Sports Network (SJSN) has produced and broadcast Hawk athletics to the Philadelphia region and beyond. Begun as an outgrowth of a four-game package of Saint Joseph’s women’s basketball broadcasts during the 1989-90 season, SJSN was founded in the fall of 1990. Since that time SJSN’s coverage of Hawk athletics has grown and currently includes live coverage of all Hawk men’s and women’s basketball games, Phil Martelli’s weekly HawkTalk radio program and the nationally-renowned HawkTalk television show.

In 1999, McCarthy originated his own daily, drive-time radio program on ESPN Radio (1680 AM) in Princeton and, one year later, began hosting shows nationally on the ESPN Radio Network. He continues to work for ESPN National.

A 1990 graduate of the College of New Jersey, McCarthy began his career as a sportswriter for The Trenton Times. After five years there, McCarthy was named the Director of Media Relations and radio play-by-play broadcaster for the AA Trenton Thunder baseball club.

A native of Brick, NJ, McCarthy resides in Allentown, NJ, with his wife Meg and their four children. Returning for his 15th season on SJSN is Joe Lunardi, assistant vice president for university communications at Saint Joseph’s. In that position he oversees media relations, Saint Joseph’s University Magazine, program advertising, web content and strategic communications, as well as an ongoing institutional image campaign.

A 1982 graduate of Saint Joseph’s, Lunardi returned to his alma mater in 1987 as director of media relations. He has also served as director of external relations and director of university communications. He was elevated to his current post in October, 2001.

Away from the University, Lunardi is the nationally known “bracketologist” for ESPN, ESPN Radio and ESPN.com. His ESPN.com bracketology site generates over 10 million hits per season. He has correctly forecast all but one NCAA Tournament team for each of the past five years and has covered more than 600 Hawk games in his career.

Lunardi and his wife, Pam, a 1984 SJU graduate, reside in Drexel Hill, PA, with their two daughters, Emily (age 10) and Elizabeth (age 7).

Phil Denne, SJU’s associate director of athletic communications, coordinates SJSN’s day-to-day operations and serves as the liaison between the athletic department and various broadcast media outlets. Denne is also the executive producer of both the HawkTalk television and radio shows.

In his second year as Associate Director of Athletic Communications after spending four years as Coordinator of Athletic Communications, the 1996 Saint Joseph’s graduate joined the SJSN staff in 1997 as a play-by-play voice for Hawk baseball. Denne added women’s radio duties in 2003-04. Prior to returning to SJU, he spent three years working in promotions and board operations at WENZ, WNCX and WERE in Cleveland, OH.

In addition to his radio and television responsibilities, he also produces the media guides for SJU’s Olympic sports and works closely with the office of development coordinating newsletters and special events.

Denne, who received a master’s degree in journalism/public relations from Temple University in 1999 and is currently pursuing his MBA at SJU. The Strongsville, OH native currently resides in Ardmore, PA with his wife Jennifer.

All Saint Joseph’s University men’s basketball games will air on WPEN-950 AM. The weekly HawkTalk radio call-in show airs from 7:00 to 8:00 p.m. on Mondays in January, February and early March on WPEN-950 AM.
